The Bloomsbury Media Cloud is a collaborative project of the Bloomsbury Colleges, which is producing and publishing audio and video content on issues related to International Development and other specialised fields represented in the Bloomsbury community. The content is published on the Internet on audiovisual web-based platforms.

The Bloomsbury Media Cloud requests that

For new material, the contributor confirms that s/he presents a contribution that is truthful and does not contain any degree of misrepresentation, and that s/he is able to enter into this agreement without committing copyright infringement, breach of contract, or the violation of any obligation to confidentiality that could jeopardize the Bloomsbury Media Cloud's use of the contribution, or that could put the project's reputation of integrity into question.

For pre-existing material, the contributor must ensure that s/he is the sole owner of the offered content and can thus authorise the Bloomsbury Media Cloud team to copy, reproduce, broadcast, edit and alter the content in any form deemed appropriate for the project's aims, but primarily for the aforementioned web platforms, and for the entire duration of the project's operations. Other forms may include uses for promotion and advertising. The contributor therefore waives any moral rights to the content (ownership over the integrity of the work and its use). This applies solely to the use of the content by the project, and not for any other enterprise that is or may be affiliated with the project. The contributor also ensures that the use of this content does not in any way infringe upon the copyright or other personal and property rights of any other individual, and that no person can claim any entitlement or demand any payment due to the use of the content.
